

BULLETIN
OF THE
TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY
OF FORESTRY
(Tokugawa Rinseishi Kenkyūjo Kenkyū Kiyō)

March 2000

Vol. 34

CONTENTS

Articles

- The Origin of the yamamori (forest guard) system in the shogunal estate Sanchū-ryō villages of Kōzuke Province*Takayuki SATO* (1)
- The naming and function of the Kanto-gundai (shogunal deputy administering the Kanto district) : an introduction to the ruling structure of the Ina family*Naohiro ŌTA* (31)
- An introduction to the history of forestry in modern Japan. Part X*Hiroshi HŌJŌ* (55)
- The political structure of the Owari domain during the Kambun period (the 1660s) with special reference to the establishment of the power held by its toshiyori (elders) group*Kōin SHIRANE* (69)
- The daimyo's premises at Edo during the formative stage of the Baku-han system, with the focus on the Owari Tokugawa's*Yōko SHIBUYA* (89)
- Nakamura Jin'emon's family, farmer in the suburb of Edo, patronized by the Owari Tokugawas, as the contractor for their courtyard scavengers: the case of the Ichigaya and Totyama residences*Yūichirō ANDŌ* (107)
- A basic study of the o-ishi (physicians) serving the Owari Tokugawas (Part 1) — the career of 203 doctors from the Kan'ei to Hōreki period (the 1620s–1760s)Tetsunori IWASHITA (123)
- Okakura Tenshin's metanationalism : His analytical skill seen through "Nippon no Kakusei (THE AWAKENING OF JAPAN)"Hidetaka TANAKA (147)
- Preservation of historical materials during the WW II : Evacuation of the resources owned by the Tokugawa Rinseishi Kenkyūjo (Tokugawa Institute for the History of the Forestry)Hajime SUDA (169)

Appendix

- A catalog of Historical Materials once owned by the Hōsa Bunko (The Owari Tokugawa's old collection) now owned by the Tokugawa Rinseishi Kenkyūjo (Tokugawa Institute for the History of the Forestry) Part I (1)

THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY OF FORESTRY

(TOKUGAWA RINSEISHI KENKYŪJO)
TOKUGAWA REIMEIKAI FOUNDATION
8-11, Mejiro 3-chōme, Toshimaku, Tokyo, 171-0031, Japan