

BULLETIN

OF

THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY OF FORESTRY

(Tokugawa Rinseishi Kenkyūjo Kenkyū Kiyō)

March 2007

Vol. 41

CONTENTS

Articles

- A research on the actual conditions of forest control in the Kiso district, with a case study of the relationship between the road checkpoint service and the afforestation project. Furthermore, a study of the establishment of the Jinbei Yamamura family is discussed. Noboru Tahara (1)
- Suyama* (hawk-nesting forests) and tomeyama (felling-prohibitory forests) systems as observed by the Owari Tokugawa feudal domain in the Kiso area before the 1724 Kyōhō reformation on the forest control policy. Akira Ōsaki (23)
- A research pertaining to the exchanges between the Tokugawa shōgun family and the feudal lord family, which were held on the feudal lord's premises in Edo. It will also evaluate the founding and the characteristics of the blood and marriage relationships among the three Tokugawa families. Kōin Shirane (51)
- An analysis of the historic materials pictures concerning lumbering and the lumber transportation system in the Kiso district and its expansion during the time of forestry administration reform by the Owari Clan in the Kyōhō period (first half of 18th century). Shigeyoshi Andō (75)
- An investigative report concerning the historic materials held by the Kyūshū Forestry Department. Naohiro Ōta (85)

[Appendixes]

- A catalog of historical materials concerning the Owari Tokugawa family. Part Three. (1)
- A catalog of historical materials concerning the Ishiko family who was a retainer of the Owari Clan. Part Two. (1)

THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY OF FORESTRY

(TOKUGAWA RINSEISHI KENKYŪJO)

THE TOKUGAWA REIMEIKAI FOUNDATION

8-11, Mejiro 3-chōme, Toshima-ku, Tokyo, 171-0031, Japan