

BULLETIN

OF

THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY OF FORESTRY

(Tokugawa Rinseishi Kenkyūjo Kenkyū Kiyō)

---

March 2009

Vol. 43

---

CONTENTS

Articles

- A study of the administration and utilization of ohayashi in the Owari Clan territory, considered through the aspects of matsutake collection and the actual status of matsutake presentation and distribution. .... Kōin Shirane ( 1 )
- A study of management efficiency and personal negotiations with other districts, when the workers in the forests such as soma migrated to the other territories and villages for sake of employment opportunities, due to declining forest resources in the Kiso-yama range during the Kyōhō era, with Ōtaki village in the Kiso district provided as a case study. .... Akira Ōsaki ( 21 )
- A study of the actual status and significance of an afforestation policy implemented in the early 18th century, in response to depletion of timber resources on Shogunate-held lands in the Hida district. .... Nobuhiro Takahashi ( 59 )
- A study of the actual conditions of Osutakayama and its conservation system, targeted for Kōzuke province and Sanchū-ryō villages, as one of the forestry policies of the Edo Shogunate. Part Two. .... Takayuki Satō ( 77 )
- A study of the actual status of Hazegi planting by the 14th head of the Owari Tokugawa family, Yoshikatsu Tokugawa, and its efficacy, related to the Clan system reform. .... Hideaki Fujita ( 89 )
- A study of forestry administration reform by the Akita Clan, carried out to preserve forest resources depleted by massive logging. .... Hiroshi Wakino (109)

[Appendixes]

- A catalog of historical materials concerning the Owari Tokugawa family. Part Five. .... ( 1 )
- A catalog of historical materials concerning the Ishiko family who was a retainer of the Owari Clan. Part Four. .... ( 1 )

---

THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY
OF FORESTRY

(TOKUGAWA RINSEISHI KENKYŪJO)

THE TOKUGAWA REIMEIKAI FOUNDATION

8-11, Mejiro 3-chōme, Toshima-ku, Tokyo, 171-0031, Japan