

BULLETIN
OF
THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY
OF FORESTRY
(Tokugawa Rinseishi Kenkyūjo Kenkyū Kiyō)

March 2011

Vol. 45

CONTENTS

Articles

- A study of the relationship between the local society and the felling and forwarding operations of the timber used for building construction for Shikinen Sengū ceremony in Ise Jingū shrine, with Mt. Yufunezawa in the Kiso region in the latter half of the 19th century provided as a case study Naohiro Ōta (1)
- A study of the transforming process of the venerable forests owned by the former vassals of the Kiso Clan into the local farmers' forests, with Gokanmon-yama and Sankanmon-yama forests in Kurokawa village provided as a case study Noboru Tahara (19)
- A study of the changes of the life and social system of the people engaged in forestry in villages in the Kiso Mountains in the late Edo period Akira Ōsaki (39)
- A study of the structure and its development of charcoal production directly managed by the Akita domain government in the late Edo period for smelting copper in Ani copper mine in the Akita domain Kazuki Haga (75)
- A study of the composition and features of the data and materials kept by the Forest Agency's Tōhoku Regional Forest Office Masami Narita (93)
- A study of actual food securing operations during the food crisis that hit mountain villages during the middle Edo period, with Ohno village in Chichibu county, Musashi province, one of the mountain villages that served as charcoal purveyors for their feudal lords provided as a case study Kenichi Kuribara (107)
- A study of the actual situation of Otomegawa, the exclusive preserve for the Owari feudal lord, and job responsibilities of Okawamori (officer) assigned to manage there during the latter half of the 19th century Hisato Yamazaki (125)
- A study of contents and features as well as their trend of the photographs taken by Tokugawa Yoshikatsu, the 14th and 17th head of the Owari Tokugawa family in the beginning of the Meiji period Kōin Shirane (145)
- A study of the contribution of 19th-century stronger forest management and planting promotion policies implemented by the Akita domain government to maintaining and conserving Akita Sugi cedar forest thereafter Hiroshi Wakino (161)

[Book Review]

- Naguri no Rekishi* (The history of Naguri area, a mountain village in Saitama prefecture) Nobuhiro Takahashi (171)

[Appendixes]

- A catalog of historical materials concerning the Owari Tokugawa family - Part Seven (1)
- A catalog of historical materials concerning the Ishiko family who was a retainer of the Owari Clan - Part Six (1)

THE TOKUGAWA INSTITUTE FOR THE HISTORY
OF FORESTRY

(TOKUGAWA RINSEISHI KENKYŪJO)
THE TOKUGAWA REIMEIKAI FOUNDATION
8-11, Mejiro 3-chōme, Toshima-ku, Tokyo, 171-0031, Japan